Numb. 548

The Daily Gazetteer.

SATURDAY, MARCH 26. 1737.

N° 546.

LATE Mail from Holland brought an Account from Dresden, of the Death and Interrment of M. Henry de Bruhl, one of the Ministers of the Cabinet to the present Elector of Saxony, who was 106 Years of Age, and Grandfather to the Baron de Stein, formerly a Minister of State at the Court of Wolfembuttle, and since, at that of Hanover, and who on Christmas Day last, perform'd his Jubilee on his being married 50 Years, at the Queen of Poland's Chapel at Dresden; on which Occasion, he received the Benediction of the Pope's Nuncio.

'Tis probable, that the Character of this venerable old Minister, who made such a Figure in the Service of two successive Electors of Saxony, and had the second Place in the Cabinet of the present Elector, will not be unacceptable to our Readers. We have therefore transcribed it from that accurate Account of the present State of the Court of Saxony, which we find in the Memoirs of the Baron de POLLNITZ. This Author appears to be a German Nobleman, who has passed some Time in most of the Courts of Europe, especially at those of Saxony, and has given the Characters of the chief Personages at the several Courts, as well as the present State of the chief Cities and Towns. This Account of the Deceased Minister, is taken from the first Volume of the Translation, just publish'd, beginning at Page 130.

'Henry de Bruhl, Knight of the Orders of Poland and Prussia, a Member of the Privy Council, President of the Chamber of Finances, Director General of the Excise, and Vice President of the Taxes, is the Son of John de Bruhl, who was of the Privy Council to Augustus II. and Grand Marshal and Director of the Privy Council to the Duke Regent of Saxe Weissenfels. He is by Birth a Saxon, and has a Brother who is Knight of the Teutonick Order, viz. Adolphus de Bruhl, who is chief Equerry, and one of the Elector's Chamberlains. He made great Progress at Leipsick in the Belles Lettres, and in the Exercises suitable to a Person of his Extraction. His Recreations there were Musick and Conversation with Persons of his own Taste. He sometimes made Verses, which are esteem'd for the bright Thoughts in them, and the Harmony of Versification. When he quitted Leipsick, he was enter'd Page to the late King, in which Post he behaved with so much Sobriety and Assiduity, that his Majesty soon distinguished him from the Crowd, admitted him to a Familiarity with him, and finding he had a sound Judgment, a quick Apprehension, a Penetration beyond what might be expected from one of his Age, and that he was a Person of Discretion and inviolable Secrecy, join'd with a noble Freedom, and such a happy Way of expressing himself, as to render the most difficult Subjects easy and pleasant; he readily judg'd that such a one was fit to be employ'd in great Affairs. He had a Mind to instruct him, and having nominated him one of the Gentlemen of his Bed-chamber, he had him under his Eye. M. de Bruhl improv'd so well from the Lessons of this great Master, so thoroughly studied his Humour, and so exactly suited himself to his Genius, that he made himself necessary. His Application, and Love to Business, and the Ease with which he dispatched it, won him the intire Confidence of Augustus II, who declared him Great Master of the Wardrobe, and a Privy Counsellor; and to him he moreover committed the Direction and Regulation of Affairs, Foreign and Domestick. Never had the King shewn more Affection or Esteem for any of his Favourites, yet this Nobleman took never the more State upon him for it; but being always humble, polite, and ready to do Services, he made himself Friends, and secured himself by that Means against all that Hatred and Envy with which Courtiers are very ready to treat those that are in Power.

'When the King of Prussia went to the Camp at Zeithaim, he conferred his Order of the Black Eagle upon M. de Bruhl. The late King also honoured him with that of the White Eagle; but this was at a Time when this Minister had no Relish for Honours, and would have been glad to have renounced them for ever, if he could thereby have prolonged the Days of a Master so worthy of Immortality.

'It was in those last Moments, when the Professions of Friendship cannot be so much as suspected, that Augustus II. gave his Favourite his Order, as a certain Token that he retain'd a Value for him, even to Death. This Great King having finished his glorious Career, M. de Bruhl, without suffering himself to be too much cast down, knowing that an Ocean of Tears was too little to shed at the Loss he had sustain'd, thought of nothing more than paying the due Devoirs to the Deceased Sovereign, and to the Prince his Son and Successor. Having therefore caused the Corpse of the former to be embalm'd, and put a Seal upon all the Effects which had belonged to him, besides securing the Jewels and Papers of Consequence, he came to Dresden to join the Elector, now King of Poland, who received him with such Marks of Kindness, as were enough to have put the deceased Monarch out of the Minister's Thoughts, if his Gratitude had not dictated to him, that such a King and such a Master ought never to be forgot.

'The King confirmed him in all the Employments and Honours which he had held by the Favour of Augustus II. and moreover, appointed him one of the Ministers of his Cabinet. Some Time after this, his Majesty declared him President of the Chamber of Finances. Consequently, this great, this true King, by distinguishing Merit, did farther Honour to the Memory of his August Father, since he did what that magnanimous Prince wou'd have undoubtedly done for his Favourite.

'At this Time, the Minister resigned to the King his Office of Great Master of the Wardrobe, which his various Occupations did not permit him to manage with that Care he thought was necessary. After the Return of the Court from Cracow, whither this Gentleman had accompanied the King, he married the Countess de Collourat, one of the Queen's Ladies of Honour, whose high Birth was supported with such personal Qualities, as can never enough be recommended. The Bride being a Roman Catholick, the Ceremony of the Marriage was performed at Moritzbourg, in presence of their Majesties, by the Bishop of Cracow. Never was a Couple better match'd; the Lady's Person being a Collection of Charms, and M. de Bruhl, a Man of as noble Presence as one would wish to see, which he generally sets off with a rich Dress of a good Fancy. Nobody at Court surpasses him in a generous Way of Living, for he keeps a noble Table, and at his House, Persons of Distinction have their Assemblies. This Minister has something so attracting in his Looks and Behaviour, that he easily wins the Hearts of People, who are the most indifferent to him. He is so polite, affable and engaging, that he listens attentively to those who lay their Wants before him, returns them courteous and distinct Answers; and whenever he is constrained to give a Denial, he does it in such a Manner, as plainly demonstrates his Concern, that 'tis not in his Power to oblige; and 'tis owing, this good Nature of his, and to the Kindness with which he treats his Inferiors, that he can boast of possessing the Love and Veneration of the Publick.'

As 'tis not unlikely, but we may have Recourse to the same polite and entertaining Author on future Occasions of the like Nature, tho', for the Bookseller's Sake, we shall be sparing in such Liberty. 'Tis proper to observe, that the Baron de POLLNITZ, being lately at Berlin, was made known by General Bork (to whom he is related) to his Prussian Majesty, who being informed that the Baron had, by his Travels, very much reduced his Fortune, sent for him to his Court, immediately settled a Pension on him, and has since made him one of his Chamberlains, and his Cup-Bearer.

Advertisement concerning this Book.

This Masterpiece of religious Policy was published, many Years since, in Latin, French, and Dutch: Mr. John Schipper, a Bookseller at Amsterdam, bought one of them at Antwerp, among other Books, and afterwards reprinted it. The Jesuits, being informed that he had purchased this Book, demanded it back from him; but he had then sent it to Holland. One of the Society, who lived at Amsterdam, hearing it said, soon after, to a Catholick Bookseller, by Name Van Eyke, that Schipper was printing a Book which concerned the Jesuits; replied, that if it was only The Rules of the Society, he should not be under any Concern; but desired he would inform himself what it was. Being told by the Bookseller, that it was The Secret Instructions of the Society, the good Father, shrugging up his Shoulders, and knitting his Brow, said, that he saw no other Remedy but denying that this Piece came from the Society. The Reverend Fathers however thought it more adviseable to purchase the whole Edition, which they soon after did, some few Copies excepted; from one of these it was afterwards reprinted, with this Account prefixed; which is there said to be taken from two Roman Catholicks, Men of Credit.
